

A New Perspective

Liyah Mackenzie
Hernandez

This poem has a three-syllable structure. It conveys the feelings of someone who realizes they've been thinking the wrong way about something for ages, and now they have to adhere to new ways of thinking.

I hope you enjoy. This is the first zine I made under my chosen name. It's just barely coming out a month and a half later. Enjoy.

Double drat.

Could it be?

No, it can't.

Yet it can.

I'm perplexed.

Please help me

Understand

The meaning

Behind what

I used to Consider

The hard truth.
Now it's but
A part of A picture
Puzzle that I don't want
To complete.
Many things
I can choose
To ignore,
Overlook,

Or cover,
But to be Shown a new Perspective
And to hold
True to its Convictions
Is so hard.
Why have I
Been given
This mission?

I must not
Turn it down,
But it will
Be truly
Difficult.
Please bear with
My conscience.
Indeed, share
Compassion
With my own
Feeble mind.

I need it.

I give thanks.

For you give

Me mercy,

You show your Mighty grace.

When I say,

"Triple drat".

Cover image in the public domain.

Read more poems at

LiyahMackenzie.blog

and visit

LiyahMackenzie.gumroad.com

to get more zines!